

The FAAQ

Frequently Asked Arcane Questions

In support of AWE version 4.0

Q1: I cannot comfortably fit 4 heavy horse figures to a single stand; do I always have to cram 4 horses into a heavy cavalry base?

A1: It's perfect to represent a heavy cavalry unit 3 figures to a base. Yet make sure that the horses are barded or armoured, at least partially, or most, so that anyone can readily identify the unit as heavy.

Q2: Must the units be assigned to their own Co?

A2: In the standard game, never.

Q3: Is AWr basing compatible with DBA or DBM?

A3: No, in most cases.

Note: we have no problems about allowing people who bring non-AWr bases to play in our tournaments, as long as they are of the appropriate frontage.

Q4: What if hills have no crest?

A4: Hills must have a clearly marked crest; otherwise there is no clear way to decide about uphill positions in a number of situations.

Q5: Can one base recoil more than once?

A5: Yes, though having to recoil twice is not a common occurrence.

Q6: Can aligned formation of different types provide extension support?

A6: No; different types must fight separately and do not directly support each other.

Q7: Why does the attacker have to recoil from a flank attack?

A7: For clarity no bases should remain in contact after CC; in this case attackers are supposed to be able to regroup, as they are not under pressure, regardless of mutual casualties. Please note that troops fighting to their flank do not fight-back.

End of the FAAQ